MBA Graduates

The University of Pennsylvania was founded by Benjamin Franklin in 1740. Although the University carries the name of the Commonwealth, it is not a state university but an independent, private, nonsectarian institution. As one of the country’s earliest educational institutions, it has consistently initiated advances in teaching and research and has steadily generated specialized fields of higher education. Penn, as the University is commonly known, was the first American university to form departments of botany, hygiene and public health, surgical research, and research medicine. The University School of Medicine, formed in 1765, was the first in North America, as was the teaching hospital founded in 1874. The world’s first psychological clinic was opened at Penn in 1896.

The Wharton School, in the same spirit of innovation and excellence, was the world’s first collegiate school of business and management. Founded in 1881 with a gift from Joseph Wharton, the Philadelphia industrialist and philanthropist, the Wharton School undertook the pioneer steps in elevating training for business significantly above its previous level as noncollegiate commercial education. In 1921, the formation of the Graduate Program signaled the advancement of business administration at Wharton to the highest levels of professional education.

Today, the Wharton School has more than 480 faculty members teaching in both the graduate and undergraduate divisions and conducting a continually expanding volume of research. The 1,785 students in the master’s degree program may choose from among more than 200 courses and over 19 majors and concentrations, a variety reflecting the fact that the Wharton education complements the career goals of the individual.

This brochure is provided to introduce you to the 2021 Wharton Health Care Management Program graduates.

We encourage you to consider these individuals for employment.
The Graduate Program in Health Care Management is a full-time 2-year MBA curriculum offered by the Health Care Management Department of the Wharton School. The program, the principal educational effort at the Leonard Davis Institute of Health Economics, is designed to provide managerial and technical expertise to students interested in the health care management field. By combining the skills of the Wharton disciplines with sensitivity to the needs of health care providers and recipients, the Wharton MBA health care graduate can effectively manage the delivery of health services and products at all levels.

The Program has produced graduates who have chosen careers in hospitals and other medical institutions, pharmaceutical, biotechnology and medical device companies, financial services, entrepreneurial ventures, consulting firms, insurance firms, private health industry, and federal, state, and local government. Many of these MBA graduates now hold positions as chief executive officers, directors, and other key decision makers in health care organizations.

The Leonard Davis Institute of Health Economics (LDI) is an interdisciplinary center for research and education in the organization, financing, and delivery of health care. Through LDI, University of Pennsylvania faculty and staff work together on issues concerning health policy, health insurance, managed care, hospitals, corporations, pharmaceutical companies, and other health-related organizations. Established in 1967, the Institute appropriately bears the name of the late Leonard Davis, one of the foremost innovators in private health insurance in the United States. He was the founder of Colonial Penn Group, Inc., a company that has pioneered in insurance for older Americans. Both Mr. Davis and Mrs. Sophie Davis were generous benefactors to the University of Pennsylvania, contributing basic support for the activities of the Leonard Davis Institute.
